

Warner Edwards

The archetypal small batch gin, Warner Edwards is produced by friends Tom Warner and Sion Edwards in a converted barn in rural Northamptonshire. Its launch at the end of 2012 followed three years of research and development by the duo as they pursued a dream to build a business around their family farms.

The water used to make Warner Edwards gin comes from a natural spring just 300m from the distillery, while its ingredients include elderflower harvested from the two family farms. All batches are made using "Curiosity", Warner Edwards' 500-litre Arnold Holstein pot still. Every bottle is then hand finished with the brand's distinctive copper and wax seal.

This fantastically smooth, aromatic dry gin scooped Double Gold at the San Francisco World Spirits Competition 2014.

Building on its success, Warner Edwards is now one of the few small batch distillers to offer variations that meet the international trend towards high quality flavoured gin.

Available Variations:
Elderflower Gin, 40% ABV
Sloe Gin, 30% ABV
Victoria's Rhubarb Gin, 40% ABV

Warner Edwards Harrington Dry Gin

Alcohol: 44% ABV

Tasting note: Soft nose of vanilla and toffee aromas with spice following. Sharp spice beginning on the palate, with sweet ginger and juniper flavours coming through. Creates a very long, mouth-watering finish.
